Whomever it may concern

Hereby Airbus Helicopters confirms the following facts:

EC135 EN13718-2 Compliance

The EC135 (all variants) is generally compliant to the EN13718-2. Some of the requirements depend on the final aircraft configuration as there is usually a HEMS STC interior installed.

§ 4.10 Patient treatment area

The aircraft layout and architecture complies with “§ 4.10 Patient treatment area” in regards to the HEMS requirements.

The EC135 cabin layout and space provides the capability for cardiopulmonary resuscitation, airway treatment and elevation of the upper body and/or legs of the patient should be possible during the flight. A deviation of the requested patient treatment layout and minimum dimensions is not necessary.

§ 5.2 Specific requirements for helicopters operated in Helicopter Emergency Medical Service (HEMS)

The EC135 comes with a high set main rotor and a shrouded tail rotor system to provide highest safety level on ground to protect the crew and people approaching the aircraft.
